Blind, uncaring, bound with selfish wants,
A child by fairy tales is steeped in romance.
Then the magic occurs — a romance of his own;
Another child winds her way into his heart.
The first inkling of selfish desire
Twinkles into embryo souls.
God appears between the children
And joyfully awakens them.
The children look about them;
In wonder they survey the world.
Beauty thundering in the surf
Brings them to insistent awareness.

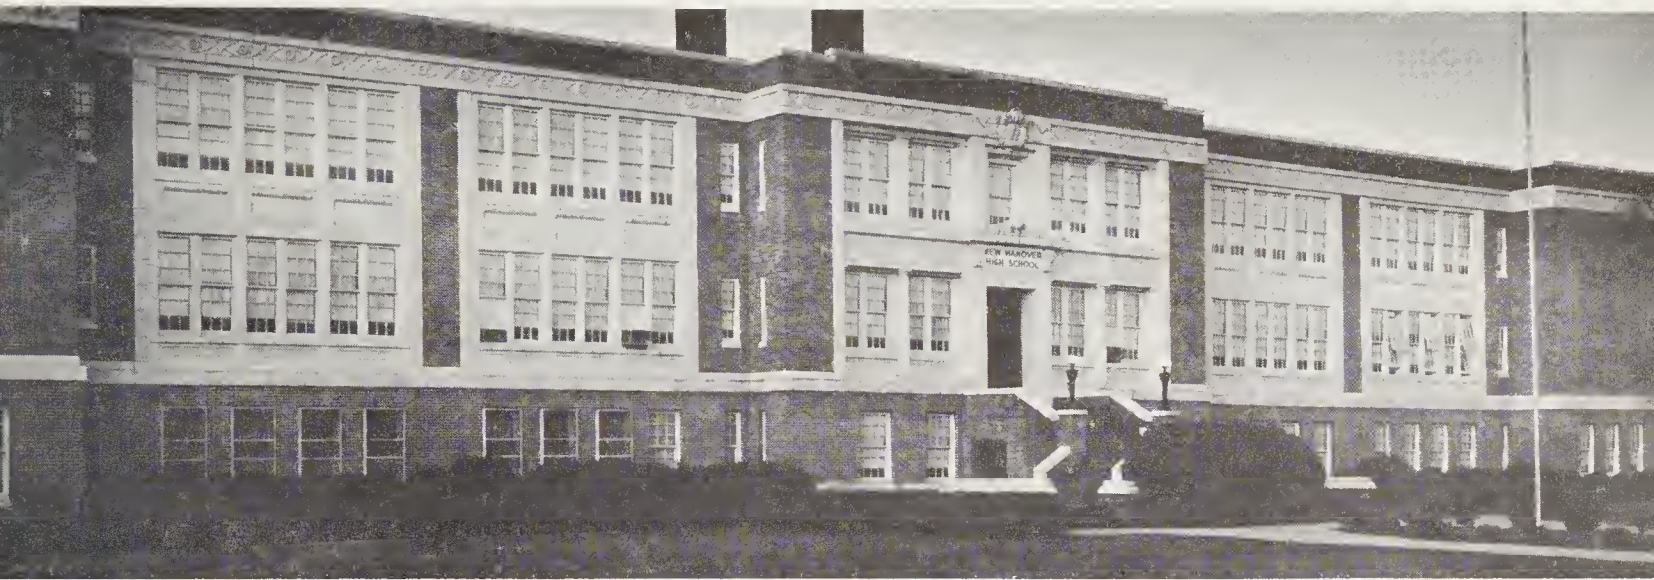

Life has ecstasy to sell;
It barter's joy for pain.
. . . The soul's awareness,
Intensified by confusion,
Seeks comfort in companionship.
The wondering adolescent
Finds reality in daily things,
Learns to cope with sorrows.
He discovers his responsibility
To pursue his ideas
In face of obstacles and fears.

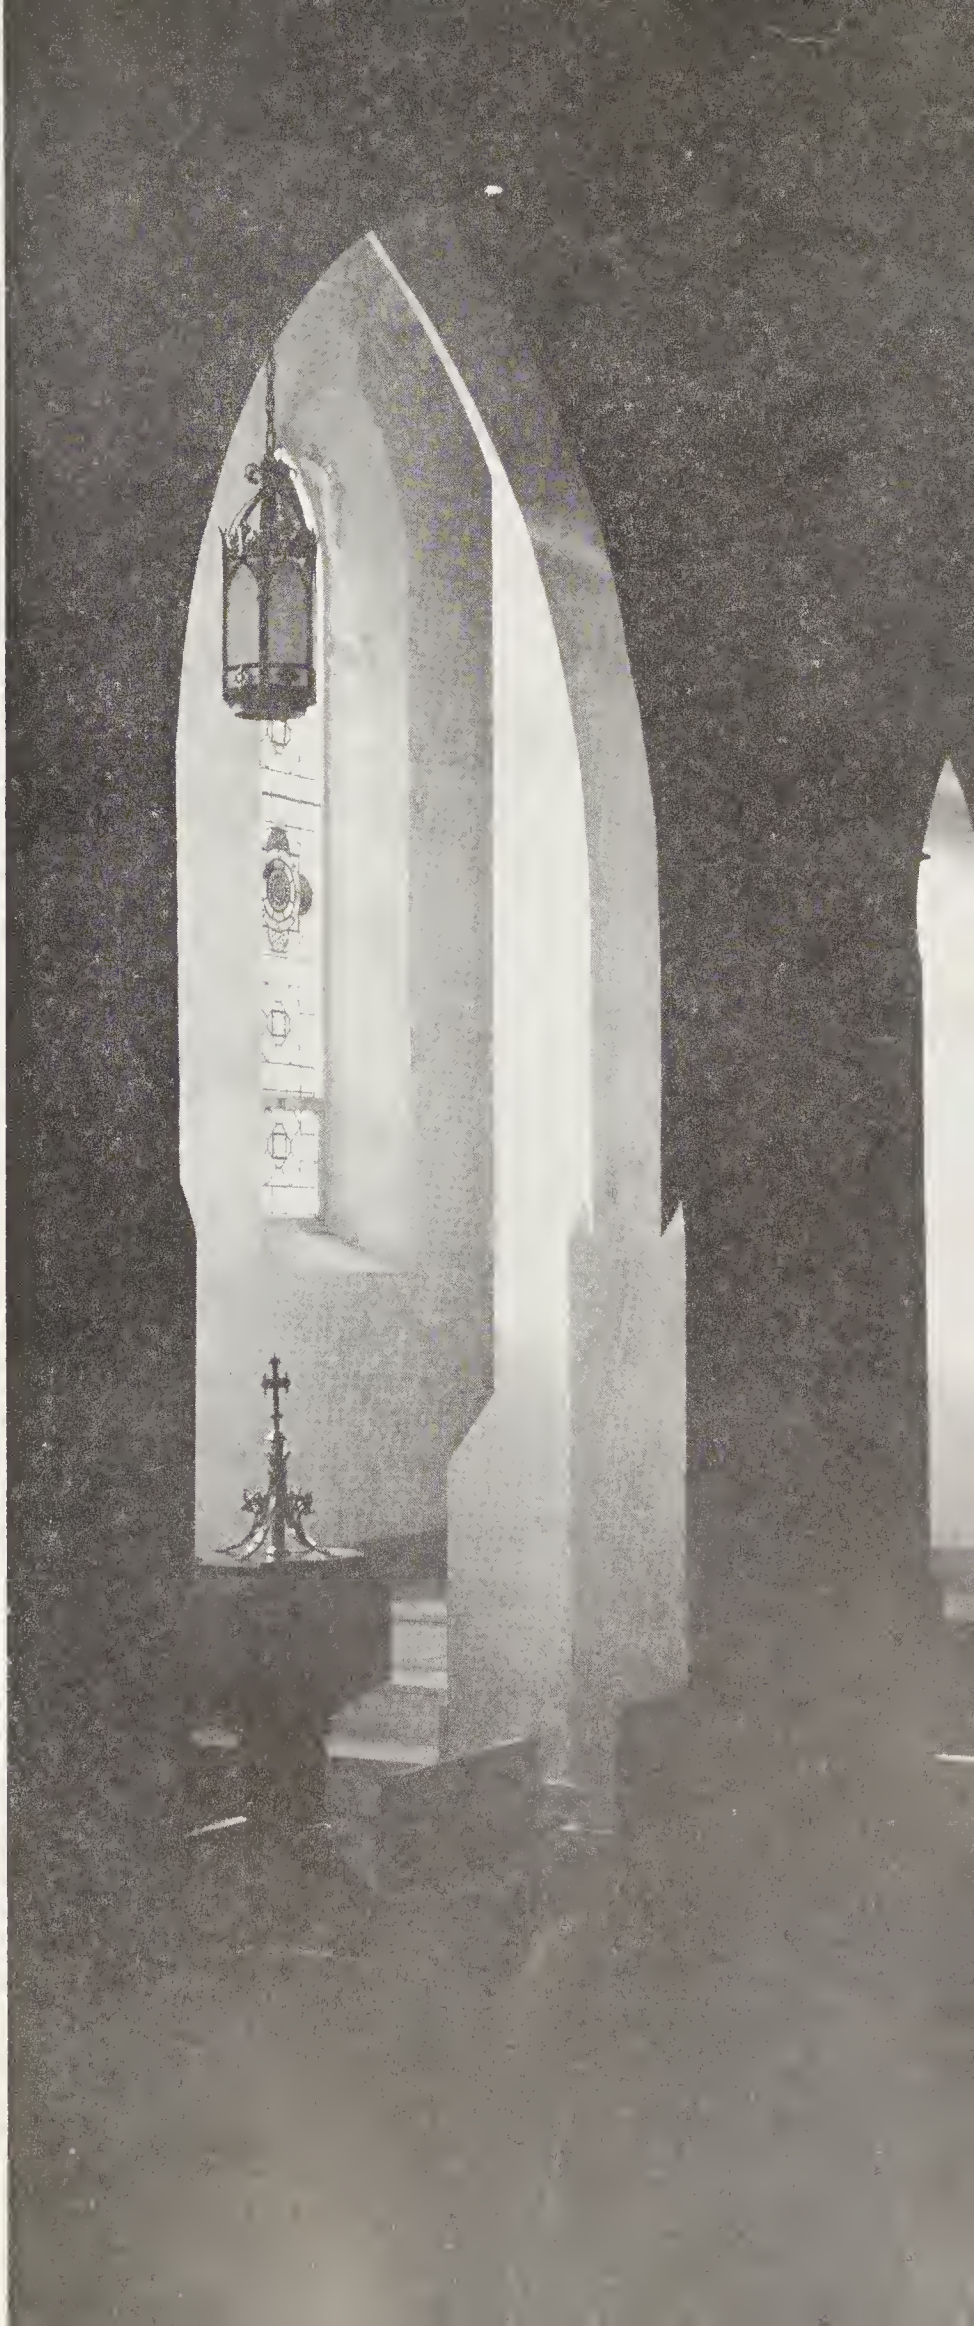

Stumbling alone,
The youth realizes a need
For direction in experience.
Through paths of learning,
The student now seeks
To confirm ideas,
To strengthen a philosophy of life.
Education becomes a quest —
A search for the answers,
The why, the how of things.
School — a symbol
Of this quest,
And the place
Wherein to pursue
The ideals of true education.
More and more,
The student begins to find in life
A pattern of the marvelous.

The child stands on the threshold,
Wondering but afraid.
Then awareness floods upon him —
Realization of the pattern,
Appreciation of beauty.
Trembling with emotion,
He lifts his heart
To where truth is beauty,
And finds the faith to live
By his personal philosophy,
In the understanding
Of the wonder of life . . .

... THE GIFT

Features

The student struggles for popularity, the ever-beckoning goal. Like a small child he hungers for recognition and security. He may find them by himself or through others—his name on a ballot, an invitation to a big dance or just a movie. These things he needs especially during his school years, but there comes the big moment, when they seem trivial to him. He looks out on new horizons and thinks of greater goals as he walks up to receive his diploma.

Dance

In a blending of soft lights and mood music, the fresh enchanting atmosphere is set — the dance begins.

This world is contrasted by the throbbing staccato of a twist or a disapproving scowl from a Twirp dance goblin. Laughter and silly chatter engulf all in a nervous frenzy, only to be mystically soothed by strains of "Blue Velvet." Formality reigns supreme as the dull brown of ROTC uniforms sets the background for glistening gowns at the ROTC Ball. Spring unfolds and invites all to enter the special world of magic at the May Dance. Unmatched beauty is highlighted by the presentation of the Queen of May and her radiant court.

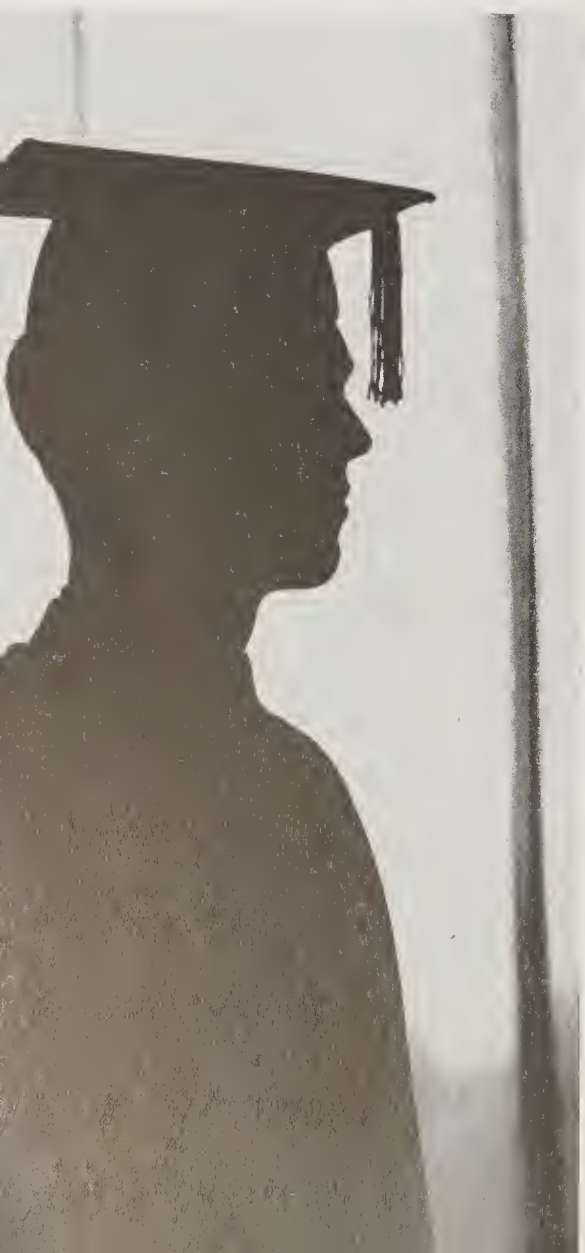

Even New Hanover has its version of the Beatles.

Edna Kelly and Linwood Perry, seniors, reach for a moment of the Twirp Dance.

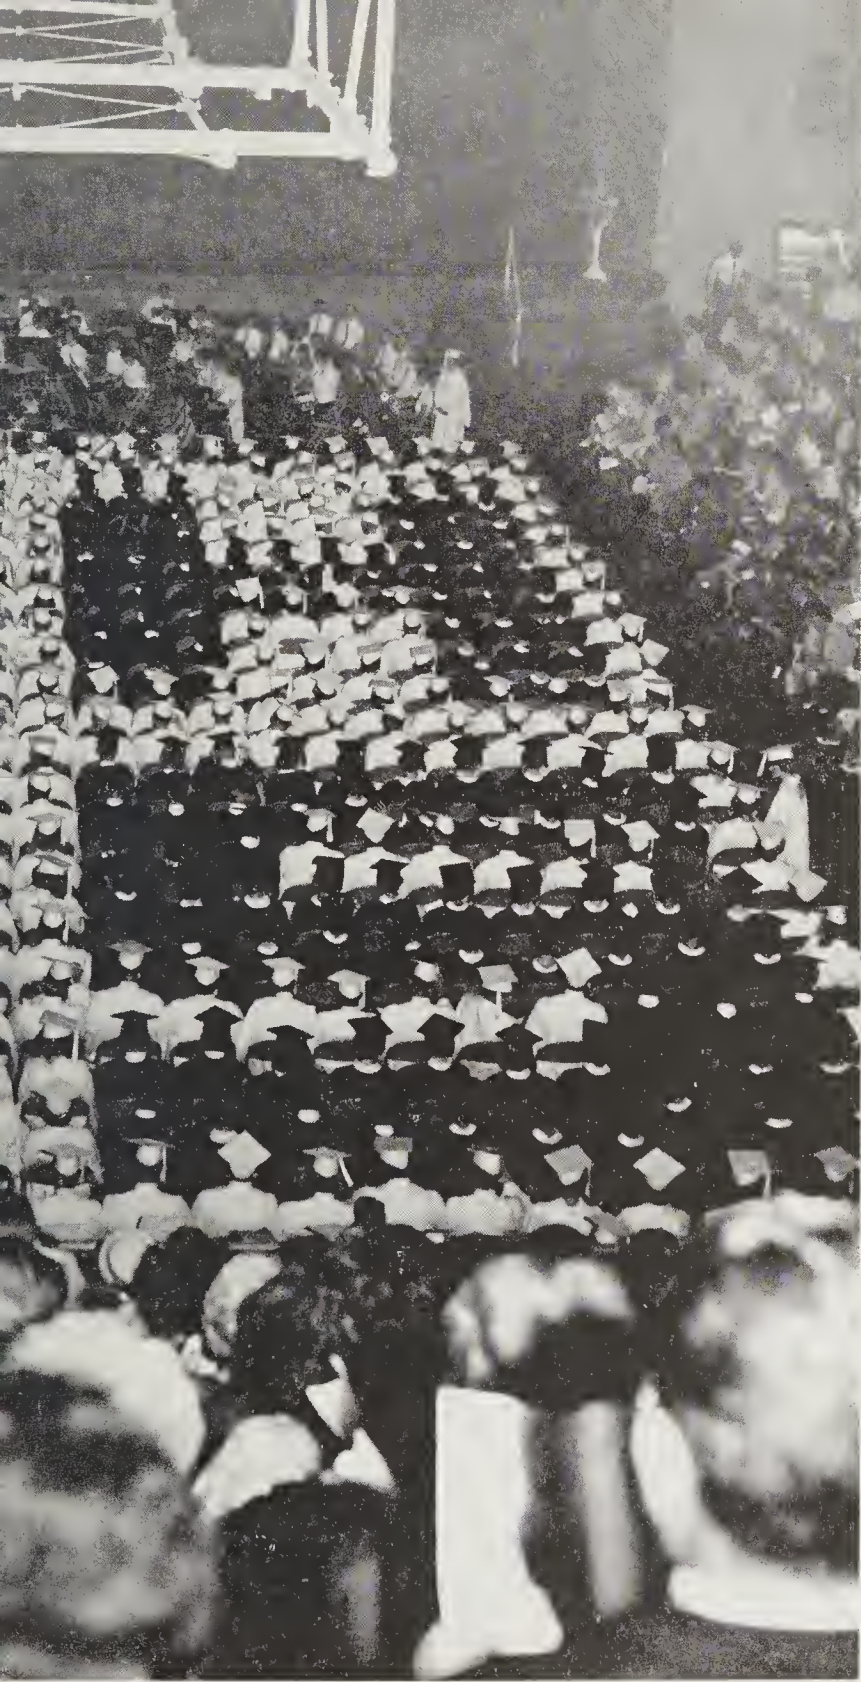

The refreshment table lures students from the dance floor at the May Dance.

Graduation

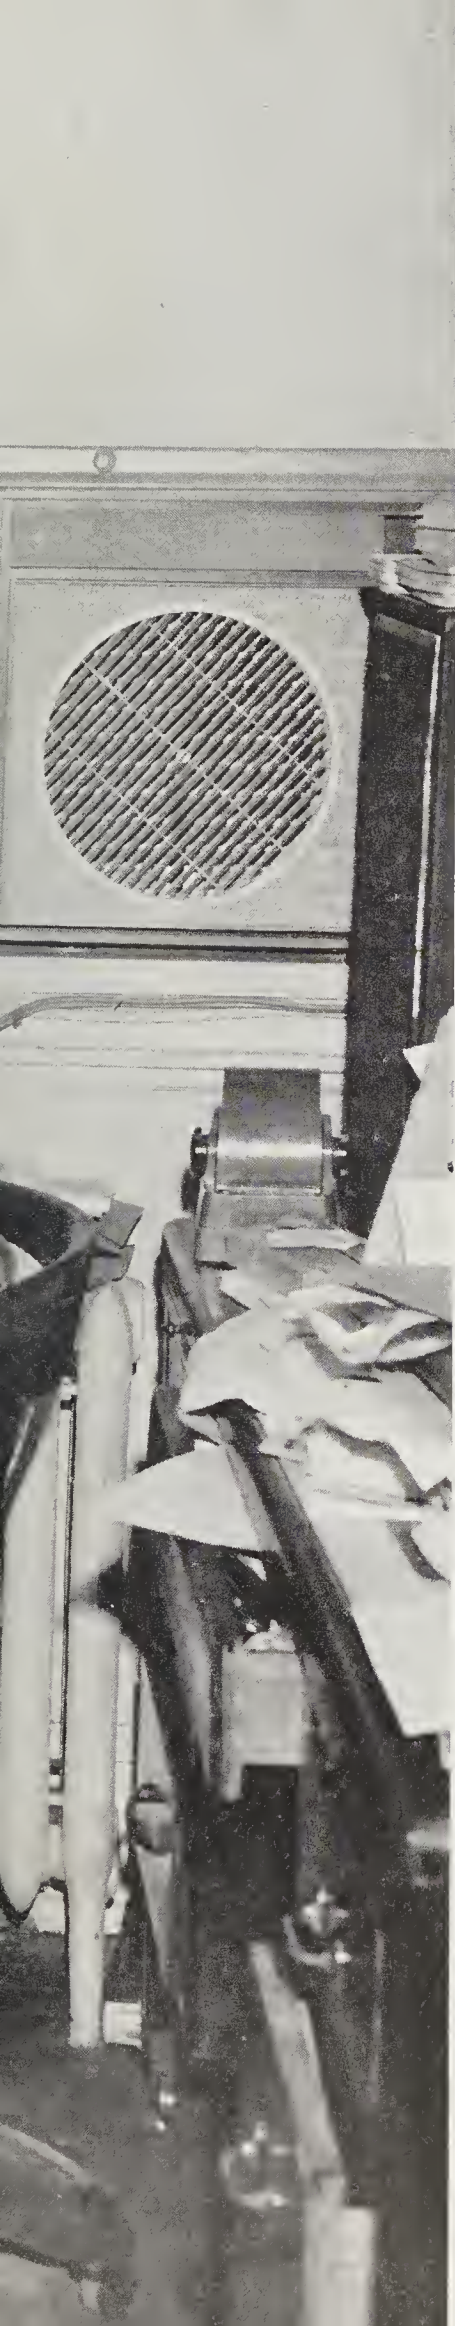

Life trains an apprentice for eighteen years but expects a full-time worker when the term is completed. Obliging, expectantly, the student prepares for his first assignment. He is ready to become an individual. Tingling with anticipation, a student walks up the aisle and onto the platform. He walks away with the promises of a future—a diploma and pride. These he will need to draw up his personal formula for ultimate happiness.

Administration and Curriculum

Students push blindly along, prodded and coaxed by nameless faces until they want to strike back or fall along the way. Some of them become the conquered, but others join the conquerors as the light of knowledge and understanding dispels their blindness. They begin to want learning, to seek out knowledge by themselves.

Administration

The staff consolidates our school. Almost every student depends on this central administrative group for guidance in times of confusion. No one can forget the terrible dignity of Mr. West's announcement at President Kennedy's death, or his constant thoughtfulness. Mr. Schurrer's firm leadership is always evident, and every student is familiar with his sly wit. The guidance staff, working with students personally, is an active symbol of strength and understanding. It is the administration which binds together 2,600 diverse NHHS students.

Mr. Wallace West, principal.

Mr. Roger Schurrer, associate principal.

Mr. Fred Capps, dean of boys, assistant principal.

Mrs. Elise Lane, dean of girls.

Miss Elizabeth Montgomery, registrar.

Mrs. Helen Huneycutt, guidance counselor.

Mr. Roger Averette, Physics.

Mrs. Estelle LeGwin, Chemistry.

Miss Kathryn Emmart, Chemistry.

Mr. Max Newber, Biology, General Math; Mr. John Carter, Senior Science, Biology; Miss Patricia Ganson, Biology; Mr. Charles Coble, Senior Science, Biology.

Science

Aside from being fascinating in itself, scientific study provides a means of question analysis. (Problem: Does hydrogen burn?) As any science student knows, the first step in problem solving is to figure out a procedure to follow. It should yield results that answer the question. Once this procedure is established, solving the problem becomes simple—unless, of course, the H_2 escapes before it is collected.

The universe is fantastic! The idea of the minuteness of atoms is too incredible for any human to comprehend. The details of a complex human mechanism cannot fail to rouse even the most blase of students to an enthusiastic appreciation of the creation.

Miss Eloise Scott, Advanced Algebra, Trigonometry; Miss Octavia Smith, Algebra II; Mr. Rupert Marsh, Algebra I, Algebra II; Miss Maie Sanders, Algebra II.

Mathematics

An expression for the practical . . . a reality for the dreamer . . . mathematics. Through higher mathematics—algebra, unified geometry, trigonometry—each student realizes the importance of exactness in a technical world. The science of numbers proves to be the undeniable confirmation of nature's almost unbelievable facts.

Miss Diane Bridi, General Math, Advanced Algebra; Mr. Paul Logue, Algebra II, Advanced Algebra.

Mr. James Pigford, Algebra I, Solid Geometry; College Math, Head of Math Department.

English

English—a reflection of life from Beowulf to Pygmalion—helps one understand the complexity of human behavior. In poetry one finds his own feelings revealed in the expressions of others. Answers to the “whys” and “hows” are acquired in the rules and reasons of grammar. By going through these worlds of past expressions and present thoughts, the student grasps and creates. Creations that sum up the learnings of the year and of the ages disclose to the student the basis of his existence—reality.

Social Studies

History—past, present, future—forms a river from no source to no end. In its depths can be found darkness and in its shallows light. A world torn by the strife of two conflicting theories of life, a society condoning hate and indifference, or a supremacy of man over man—rapids in the river.

Governments' intricate maze of politics is easily conquered through patient acceptance. Debate offers one a chance to see another's view, to evaluate it, and to choose or reject. Current events allow students to keep up with history as it is being made.

A study of society and human nature, sociology allows one to investigate life around him; whereas, a nation's problems, from inflation to depression, lie under the microscope of economics.

Mrs. Sarah Sugg, U. S. History, Government; Miss Brenda Jones, U. S. History; Mrs. Ruth Warren, Government.

Mr. Bob Alexander, Vocal Music; Mr. W. F. Adcock, Instrumental Music.

Music

A page black with sixteenth runs, sweeping slurs, and precarious accidentals is mere mechanics, lacking in music's most important quality, until through its universal media music becomes the language of the soul.

Bizarre woodwinds, sonorous brass, bombastic percussion, precise strings—ninety-six sounds—each unique, but related, blending into one sound, yet with each quality definitely apparent.

Soprano, alto, tenor, bass — colors in a choral picture with one hundred-fifty painters. Dynamics, the high-lights and shadows of the picture, give variety to otherwise monotonous lines.

A roll of drums, a trumpet's blare—all minds snap to attention as the Stars and Stripes are raised at formation—"Oh, say can you see—"

"Con cordia per musicum"—world harmony through music.

Sarah Kay Kittle, junior, practices for her lead in Oklahoma.

Dan Shepard, sophomore, conquers a difficult flute technique.

The lively language lab . . .

Languages

"Ecoutez et repetez . . . Listen and repeat." This is the revolutionized language department. Not a word of English is permitted—the student must learn, like a baby, through sheer exposure. He treks twice a week to the lab; the novelty still hasn't worn off. New textbooks are crammed with conversations, conjugations, "idiotic" expressions. Folk music livens up the halls. Third year French and Spanish stress country and heritage; Latin, the basic language, stresses culture. An industrious group experiments in non-credit Russian. A realization of the path to world peace through personal understanding . . . language.

Mrs. Elizabeth West, French II, III; Miss Elizabeth Boles, English II, French I.

Miss Pat Archbell, Latin I, II; Mrs. Ida Mintz, Latin I, II.

Mrs. Virginia Maynard, Spanish II, III, Head of Language Department; Mr. Frank Farrow, Spanish I, II; Miss Nina Overton, Spanish I, II.

Mrs. Laura Martin, Home Economics I, II; Miss Sumaleigh Brown, Home Economics II, III.

Home Economics

Home economics . . . a guide to family living. A girl finds that making a happy home is the science and the art for which she was created. She realizes that she must be the backbone of her future household. Her many duties will draw on all sources of knowledge. She must play the multiple role of business manager, patient teacher, comforter, referee, interior decorator, and nurse, as well as expert chef and seamstress. Home-making is the basis of a nation, for in the home one learns to live.

Mrs. Jean Tillitt, Physical Education.

After the game — a pensive player pauses, reflects.

Athletics

Cultivate a body, and it becomes exuberance itself. Physical fitness — a President believed in this. Calisthenics cultivates strength, coordination. Through competitive sports the student athlete learns skill, sportsmanship. Sweat and tears become liquids that cleanse through practice and failure. But the fresh freedom of a clean body and mind is worth the unending struggle. Power, patience, and pride develop a well-rounded individual. Health . . . through athletics.

Driver's Education

Safe driving is an attitude. Driver's education in this age of high speed means not only training in operation skills; it must also be a course in the importance of courtesy and caution on the road. Because of their thorough safety instruction, these students become alert and thoughtful drivers.

Bible Students seek inspiration at Trinity Methodist Church.

Mr. William Hardee, Driver Education.

Bible

How does Christ's birth affect our daily life? How does our responsibility to others tie in with our responsibility to God and to ourselves? . . . Students seek to discover the secrets of life by philosophy and worship, taking their text from the Book of wisdom which guided the founders of our civilization.

Miss Ruth Spence, Bible I, II.

Mrs. Janie Yates, Dramatics, Speech, Stage Crafts.

Art

Finding harmony in violent emotion, a pupil learns to create beauty from his feelings. By the use of line-color-texture-form he communicates to another his own philosophy, comprehending his power to express himself by the medium of the plastic arts.

An abstract design sings and soars in purity of color and line. Clay is kneaded into a woman's figure. Silvery woodlands emerge from a canvas under the guiding hand of a sensitive young artist. Eyes, trained and disciplined to see, realize anew the beauty of simplicity, and with understanding begin to portray truth.

Dramatics

Use of language: a way to impart ideas through speech. Entertainment — both comedy and tragedy necessarily contain a message. Design, color. How can a set best express the mood of a play? Young people interested in the art of communication join in a study of methods.

Mrs. Shirlee Gearhart, Art I, II, III.

Miss Fannie O'Keef, librarian; Miss Diane Burton, English 10; Miss Martha Cromartie, librarian; Miss Rebecca Russ, Government.

Library

"The whole world here unlocks the experience of the past." Within the library lies the story of man. Here the dreams, the disappointments, and the discoveries of a single soul blend and become part of an immortal institution. The library is a house of thoughts. It is the meeting place of the great minds of all ages. Every day three hundred students browse through the NHHIS library, within the library is intellectual food to be "chewed, swallowed, or digested" . . . books.

An efficient library assistant . . . trained in even the most menial of tasks.

Distributive Education and Industrial Co-operative Training

The business world—frustrating and baffling to many becomes challenging to those of DE and ICT. Destined to be future leaders of a mechanized world, these seventy-six students strive to please and gain through their work. Their second work load, not theoretical study but practical business experience, begins at 12:30 p.m. each day.

Ann Ward finds that working at the cash register is quite easy.

David Flewwellen's work in the stock room involves much searching.

Mr. James Watters, Machine Shop I, II; Mr. Paul Matthews, Basic Electricity, Basic Math.

Trained Industrialists

Trained to be the foundation and building blocks of an automated world, students of the industrial department prove their ability to understand and apply principles.

In general departments — wood work, shop, and carpentry — students create practical products from rough disheveled wood. A study of electricity provides a means of probing into the mysteries of wiring and currents. It teaches the student the elementary principles of radios and the operations of motors and generators. Machine shops give future technicians or supervisors first hand knowledge of intricate machines and let them apply skills. Mechanical drawing teaches exactness and precision through blue prints, geometric construction, lettering, pictorial drawing, projection or technical sketching.

Completion of highly specialized or general courses allows a student to become substantial support in an industrialized America.

Business

The rhythmic confusion of forty-six office machines—steady clicks, slow rumbles, and short rings—signify business education. It is a voice volleying against this automation and a hand hurrying across a pad. It is drill, practice, drill again . . . frantic preparation for the organized world of business. Daily, eight teachers lead more than half our student body through the three gateways of the realm of business—stenography, clerics, and bookkeeping. With dreams, and energy to pursue these dreams, many senior high students see opportunities for advancement—promising positions, sufficient salaries, a culture made possible by business. Labor . . . but in the end, the reward.

Assistants

Silent forces—seldom seen but ever affecting. They are the pulsing beat that steadily goes on, unmindful of pervading clamor—spectators in a living frieze of changing faces and unpredictable moods. Silent but never still—the faithful mop sliding past the door, the daily bulletin delivered punctually each morning. Classrooms straightened, pencil sharpeners fixed — they keep the school running for twenty-six hundred students. Think — no heat, no lunch, no fix-it man, dirty boards — disaster to a well organized system. They represent a highly mechanized machine which uses humans instead of screws, bolts, and wires. Understanding hearts and minds make them interested and friendly and kind.

Activities

The student turns. He observes the time-consuming, exhausting, yet fascinating campus in action and is confused as to whether to take a part. There is not time for contemplation. Meetings to attend, programs to organize, responsibilities to shoulder — the well-rounded student becomes a symbol of achievement.

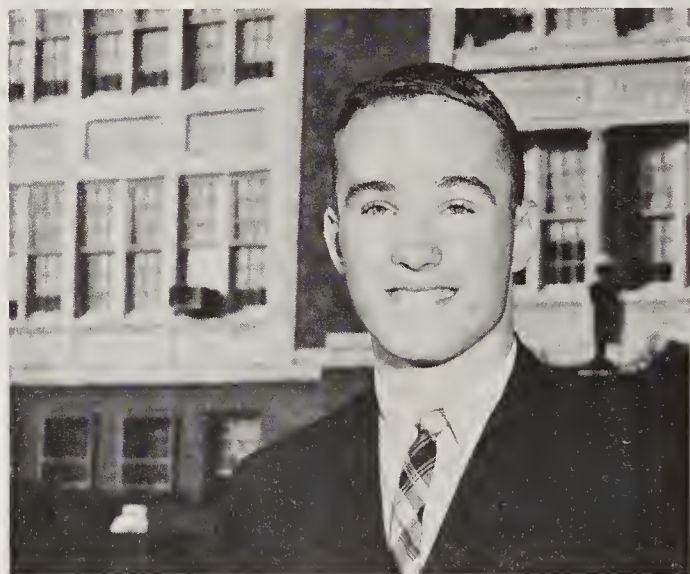

Frank Shepard, president.

Mariana Nicks, Frank Shepard, and Keith Abernathy conduct an assembly.

Student Body Officers

Mariana's preparing the Student Congress Bulletin Board, Keith's helping to prepare sophomore orientation day, and Frank's organizing the bonfire are fine examples of ambitious student body officers on the alert for new ideas and for ways to better NHHS. The Cabinet supplies these ideas; the officers direct student body activities and co-ordinate campus life.

Keith Abernathy, vice-president.

Mariana Nicks, secretary

Cabinet

Working not only as a group of advisors to the president but also as individuals, the cabinet members head the ten committees of the NHHS Student Congress. From Calvin's supervising student elections to Jennifer's arranging flowers for the sick, leaders effectively organize and execute the details of cabinet work.

Jim Furr, Berta Broussard, and Linda Hill discuss a cabinet proposal.

Senate

The twenty-one members of the Senate are called to order each week by their president Keith Abernathy. With the flag saluted, a prayer said, and the minutes read and approved, the work begins. An item in the never-ending business of the Senate comes to the floor. The bill is thoroughly discussed and either goes on its way for approval or dies in the Senate.

Bobby Bohannon and Wright Holman participate in the devotion led by chaplain Gaye Godwin.

Ed Straughan keeps an eye on the parliamentarian.

Lyman Kinlaw, Page, delivers a House-approved bill to the Senate.

House

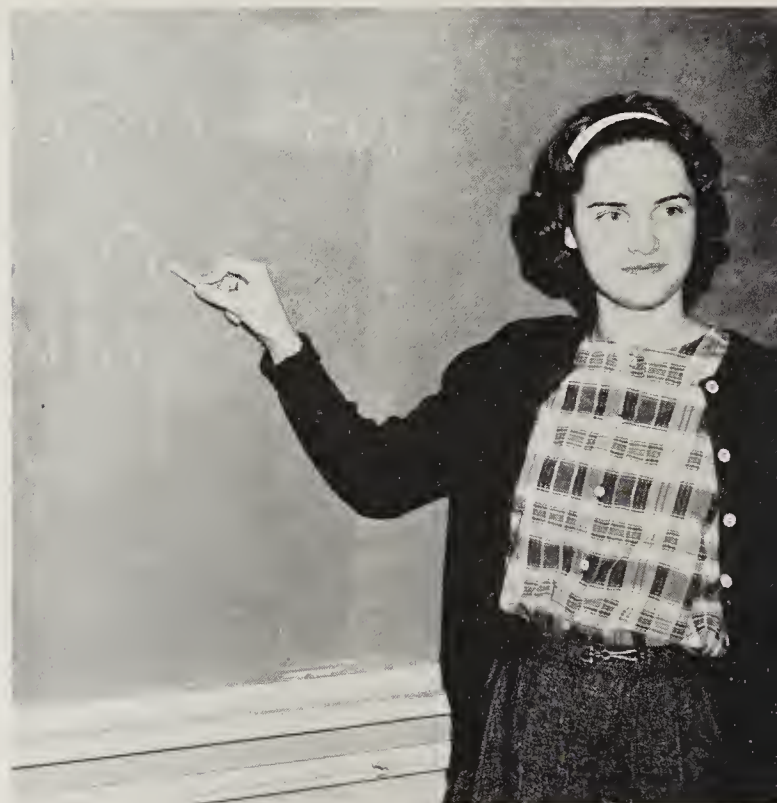

After a full year of debate between House and Senate, the power of originating finance bills went also to the House through the revised constitution. Still under discussion is the Honor System, which for months has evoked many pros and cons.

Front row: K. Abernathy, speaker; E. Straughan, Pres. pro-tem; B. Wells, clerk; B. Gullledge, chaplain; L. Kinlaw, page; D. Scott, parliamentarian; D. Kohel, sergeant-at-arms. Second row: L. Homeroom Chairmen

"Now, let's vote again, and this time just vote once." The life of the homeroom chairman is trying. Besides conducting homeroom elections, he is in charge of collecting money for the Thanksgiving and Christmas offerings. "I'd like to give a quarter, but all I have is a ten-dollar bill." The patient chairman digs into his box of money. The one job he dreads most is giving out the newspapers. Confusion is the only result, but the homeroom chairman is conditioned to such a life.

"All for this one," says Mary Pat Burdette as she conducts a homeroom election.

Judges

In trying law-offenders and interpreting the constitution, the judges, a vital part of student government, perform their essential duties.

Chief-Justice Allen Lewis passes sentence as Mike Yarborough, clerk, records case.

Dan Shepard, Mary Murchison, Sandy Symmes, and Robin Leloudis decide the verdict.

Judicial Marshals

Halls teeming with people—"Keep right!" Students jamming entrances—"Move quickly!" A dangerous cross-walk—"Wait for the green light!" Crowded stairs — "Don't skip steps."—The Judicial Marshals daily direct students to their classes with speed and efficiency.

Front row: E. Powell, S. LeMaster, K. Graybeal, A. Conner, J. Holden, S. Baggett, M. Pearsall, J. Suggs, N. Nunalle. Second row: K. Hedman, chief; S. Pope, D. Long, K. Brown, J. Pelland, M. Social Marshals

And the bulletin reads: "There will be an important meeting of all the social marshals immediately after school in room 208."

The fifteen social marshals are constantly planning their many and varied duties. Refreshments and invitations for the new students' tea, directions to be given at P.S.T.A. meetings — they add a touch of charm and friendliness to everything they do.

Another month — another duty. With December come tangled strands of lights for the Christmas tree in the lobby. Late hours are spent in the Student Union decorating for the Valentine and May Dances. The marshals end the year in preparation for the Student Congress tea.

Margaret Pretlow, Danny Hall, Pam Darden, Edna Kelly, Mary

Decorating a Christmas tree is a job that Edward Lynch, Gayle Sanderson, and Janice Wilson seem to enjoy.

Assistant head social marshal, Mary Lawther, and head social marshal, Laura Fonvielle, get ready for the first PSTA meeting.

Jack Rasberry, Barbara Corbett, George Hodnett, and Marian Saffo discuss with Laura Fonvielle plans for the Valentine Dance.

King, and Vickie Tienken serve Mabel Roccisano at a tea for the exchange students.

Honor Society members enjoy one of their monthly supper meetings.

National Honor Society

A somber strain, a subdued suspense, a filled feeling—a student is tapped into the National Honor Society. His greatest goal in high school has now been realized. His frantic accumulation of eight activity points, his hours of solitary study, his efforts to control that “chattering tongue that should keep peace”—all were for this moment. A pupil has become a student.

In the fall he watched outstanding seniors light their candles and walk up the aisle. He felt twinges of anticipation, but he was afraid to hope too much. Now in the spring of his junior year he is being inducted. He is proud, and he holds his head high; for he knows that he must set an example in character, scholarship, leadership, and service. He knows that the National Honor Society’s fifty members represent education in its highest and truest form.

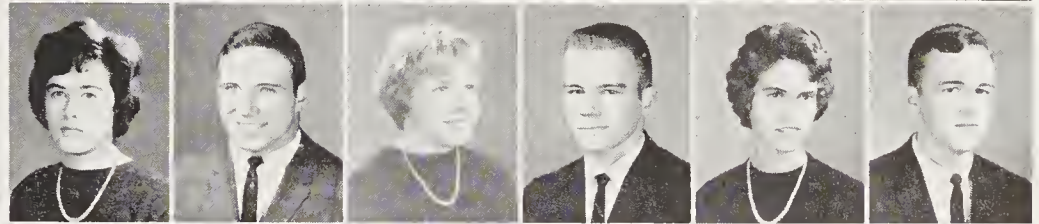

A new senior member gets tapped during the fall inductions.

Handbook

On the first day of school all students received an edition of the Orange and Black Handbook. Fourteen committee members found time during spring exams and summer vacation to compile the 1963-1964 edition.

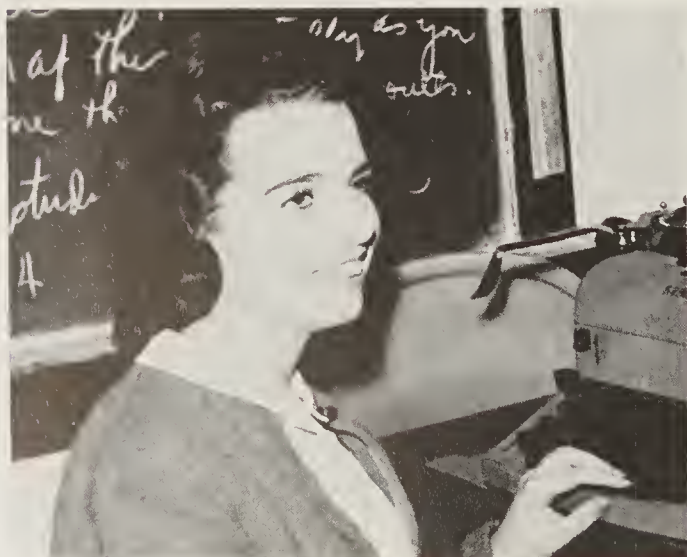

Allen Lewis, Judy Bradshaw, Prissy Mebane and Keith Abernathy leave Student Union after committee meeting.

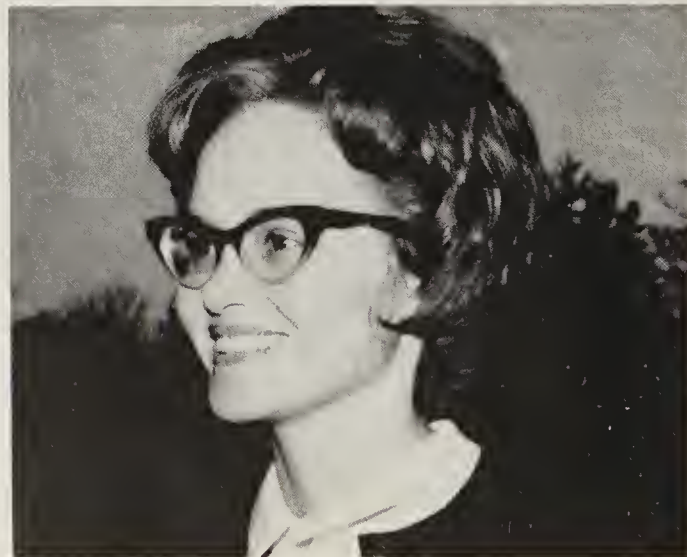

Telephone Directory

Tap! Tap! Tap! The typewriters go to work typing the listings for the 1964 NHHS Telephone Directory. Is her last Name Brown or Browne? A diligent proofreader leans over typed list of student names. Every now and then he makes a correction. Names and numbers must be exact. The artist and the advertising staff contribute essential parts of the publication. Into a homeroom walks a confident student laden with many contract books. Who would like to buy a Telephone Directory? All hands shoot up. Headed by efficient co-chairmen, the 1964 Telephone Directory, listing 2,500 names and numbers, is a tremendous success.

Tim McKeithan never thought membership in the Key Club would mean serving teachers at a faculty banquet.

Key Club

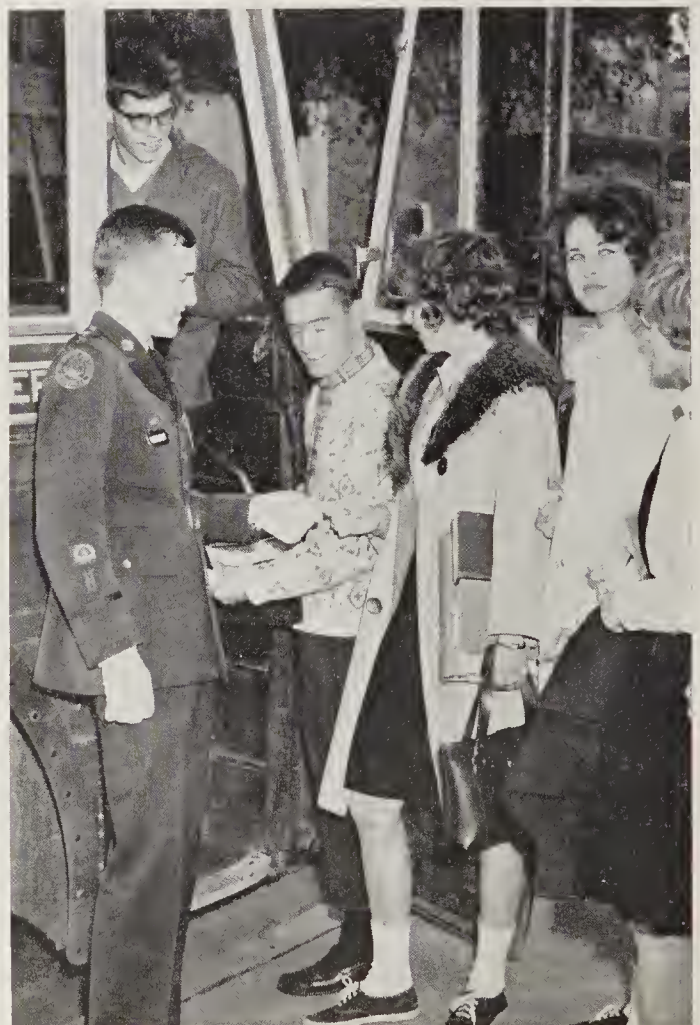

Thirty boys turned into waiters and chefs to serve one hundred twenty teachers at the first banquet ever held for the entire faculty. At 6:30 o'clock one Saturday morning in October the Club members sowed grass in Pembroke Jones Park. Soap suds and water covered them the rest of the day at a Club sponsored car wash. The Club promoted school spirit by chartering five buses to Raleigh for a football game, getting Roman Gabriel to speak to the special assembly on Sportsmanship, and donating a trash can to the school during Clean-up

The Key Club and Interacts fight a tough battle during a football game—the Key Club won.

Linwood Perry grabs the chance to meet Roman Gabriel by introducing himself after Roman's speech on sportsmanship sponsored by the club.

Wildcat fans give tickets to Don Fox as they board a club sponsored bus to an out of town basketball game.

George Andrews and Prissy Mebane, Key Club Sweetheart, carry drinks from the Student Union for a club party.

Week. February was highlighted by the Key Club Follies.

With all this activity the boys still find time to play—a football game with the Interacts, dances, a house party. The Key Club forms a united service effort, contributing to school and community by bringing out the best in today's teenagers.

"Keep New Hanover clean and green." Charles Young and Jerry Hartgrove put a club donated trash can to good use.

Bible Club

"The Program Committee of the Bible Club will meet at 3:45 p.m. in Trinity Methodist Church." Hardly a day goes by that an important meeting is not announced. Every Tuesday afternoon at homeroom period a devotion is given by a Bible Club member over the public address system. Each year "The Billy Halliburton Award" goes to a student who demonstrates outstanding Christian characteristics.

This year the Bible Club members observed "Christian Emphasis Week," which was advertised throughout the school by catchy posters and bulletin boards.

JETS

Amid the clamor of protractors and slide rules an interest in engineering is born. To encourage and stimulate this interest and to satisfy accompanying curiosity, the Wilmington Engineers' Club founded JETS. The twenty-nine members have the opportunity to pursue this new interest beyond school hours by taking field trips to local projects and by talking with professional engineers.

Mike Brown, Cookie Foreman, and Bobby Pickard leave Industrial Building after a JETS meeting.

French Club

Blue, white, and red fleurs-de-lis appear on collars — French Club members sport club pins. At a fall meeting the club toured France by watching slides taken by a local minister. A former resident of France spoke about Christmas customs there. Then came the banquet at which foods, cooked and served by club members, brought French cuisine to New Hanover students.

Interact

The Interacts, a new boys' club sponsored by the International Rotary Club, have worked hard to make the student body aware of their organization. The selling of concessions at the football games, the refereeing of basketball games at the Y, and the sending of ten tons of food overseas were among the club's numerous activities.

David Pontius and George Everett read about other Interact Club activities throughout the world.

Mariana Nicks, president; Edna Kelly, historian; Artie Markatos, secretary; and Mike Brown, treasurer, board the bus for the FTA Convention.

Future Teachers

"A teacher affects eternity; he never can tell where his influence stops."

Patient, understanding, intelligent — a teacher must be many things. He is a leader, a guide to youth. Because of their desire to teach, members of Future Teachers of America are eager to delve into the different aspects of education. At meetings the Future Teachers learn from panels about the fields of language, science, and mathematics. FTA programs cover all types of schooling—elementary, junior and senior high school, and college. Recognizing that principals, deans of students, and guidance counselors are essential parts of today's school system, club members study and discuss the roles of the teaching profession.

"I'll have no laughing in this debate," David Scott declares to Mary Murchison and Lynda McIver.

Debating Club

Silence—the debate begins. The argument is tossed about freely. The listening students sit up. Excitement mounts; voices grow louder. The audience has clustered into small groups to discuss the subject among themselves. Formal debate is over, but opinions expressed sparked provocative ideas.

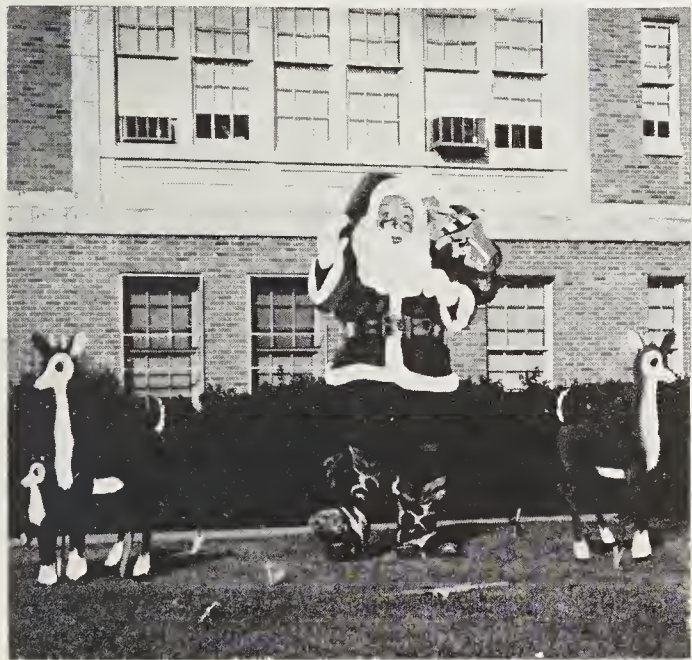

Gwen Davis, Bobby Pickard, and Beverly Briggs ponder over reference books for their debate.

Arts and Crafts

A stroke of a brush, a beautiful, bright mass of color — and the master-piece is finished.

Thespians

The curtain goes up. All eyes focus on the stage as the Thespians of Hanover present The Miracle Worker, the story of Helen Keller. Ably directed by Mrs. Yates, the young actors and actresses present the play in a very moving and realistic manner.

Not all the work of the Thespians is done by the students in the play. Setting up props for the production, getting costumes for the cast, serving on the make-up committee and advertising for the play keep a variety of committees busily engaged. This year eight Thespian members were inducted into the National Thespian Society.

Library Assistants

Please help me find a magazine with an article about antique furniture in it. How do you look up spiders in the Reader's Guide? How do you use the card catalogue? Questions, questions! These cards must be typed, stamped, and put in the books. These books need to be taken to the bookroom and put on the correct shelves. Yesterday's newspapers should be replaced by today's editions. Library detail is largely the responsibility of the twenty-nine library assistants under the supervision of Miss Cromartie and Miss O'Keef. The library assistants sponsor the Christmas Tea. This year huge red candles decorated the tables where the assistants had displayed the new books. These assistants keep busy in the manner of true student librarians.

Band

Drill began in August. Steps and timing were perfected; shadows lengthened at majorette practice preparatory to the tedious formation of halftime entertainment for home games and college games at Chapel Hill and Greenville. The Pep Band supported cheering at football games and pep rallies, and the Marching Band lead the Homecoming Parade, the Teenage Princess Parade, and marched in the Azalea Festival Parade.

Band

Fresh from a busy marching season, band members began a series of concerts with their Christmas program. In January the group combined with the Hanover Singers to present a Contemporary Concert featuring the modern composition Sinai. Sixteen band members were chosen to play with the state's top musicians in the Symphonic Band. Six others qualified for the Concert Band. The last concert was given with all school bands at the Musical Festival in May.

Girls' Chorus

Many songs to be learned . . . robes to be fitted . . . hours and hours of practice . . . these are all part of the preparation for a performance of the Girls' Chorus.

The Girls' Chorus, made up of junior and senior girls, is the only performing girls' group at NHHS. This group serves as a training group for the Hanover Singers.

Along with the Hanover Singers, the Girls' Chorus took part in the Christmas Concert. They gave Benjamin Britten's "Ceremony of Carols," presented in madrigal style and mood with special staging and lighting. They also took part in the State District Contest, held this year in Wilmington, the Music Festival, and the Spring Concert.

The Hanover Singers know that hours and hours of practice make a good performance.

Hanover Singers

The weeks of practice are finally over. The performance day has come. On Wednesday before the Thanksgiving holiday, the Hanover Singers presented a concert of holiday music. During the Christmas season they participated in a Christmas concert. In February, the Hanover Singers, composed of seventy-eight members, presented the musical play "Oklahoma," and in April members of the group assisted in the world premiere of "Listen to Your Heart."

Sports

The fight is on. The buzzer sounds, the minutes tick away. With gasping breath and pouring sweat, the players reach to grasp victory, to measure themselves by others. Sometimes they lose, but losing is not failure: losing is but gaining experience with which to meet the challenge that will inevitably follow.

Coaches Jap Davis and Leon Brogden watch the team put their basketball strategy into action.

Coaches

Every year New Hanover High School produces athletic teams which are strong competitors whether they win or lose. Because of superior coaching, the Wildcats have compiled records to be proud of in all sports. Head Coach Leon Brogden has led varsity teams in the three major sports for the last eighteen years. Because of his expanding duties as Director of Physical Education, Coaches Jap Davis and Buck Hardee will instruct football and baseball teams as of 1964.

Football

The New Hanover High School football team kicked off its 1963 season by tying the High Point Bisons 6-6. After being overpowered 26-7 by Burlington, Wilmington marked its first win over Raeford, 14-6. In the conference opener the 'Cats were defeated 26-6 by defending champion Rocky Mount. Dropping the next tilt to the Raleigh Caps 22-7, the locals copped their second win of the season by downing Jacksonville 24-7. Goldsboro outran the New Hanover eleven 28-6 on the Earthquakes' turf, but in the succeeding contest Darrel Kohel outdistanced Wilson's secondary defense for two touchdowns to lead Wilmington to its first conference victory, a 19-12 finish. In the final thirty seconds of the following game Durham squeaked by the locals 14-13. Fayetteville overcame the Wildcats 20-0 in the final tilt.

Track Team

The recently revived track team, led by Mr. Frank Farrow, compiled a respectable 4-3 record this season. The harriers started with a victory over Fayetteville and Durham in a tri-meet, and copped a second win over Fayetteville in a return scrap. Defeated by Chapel Hill in the next contest, the Wilmington runners took second place in a tri-meet with Fayetteville and Chapel Hill. In the state meet, where over twenty teams participated, the locals placed eighth, a marked improvement over last year.

Basketball

Co-captain Randy May

After winning three out of four preliminary games, the NHHS basketball team was outmaneuvered by Raleigh in the conference opener. Wilmington then edged Rocky Mount, but was beaten by undefeated Durham in the next contest. The 'Cats copped a decision over Wilson, but Fayetteville then took the locals' measure, and Goldsboro grabbed a two-point victory. Wilmington broke loose to down the Pembroke freshmen. Raleigh triumphed in the following game, but the Wildcats recovered with three straight wins, beating undefeated Durham in the process. Fayetteville eked out a one-point win, but the 'Cats defeated Goldsboro twice to gain the EC4A semi-finals. Their first-place Raleigh barely stopped the Wildcats' advance in a double-overtime thriller.

The New Hanover High School baseball team started its 1963 season by defeating the Jacksonville Cardinals 6-4. In the return engagement Wilmington again prevailed over the Cards in a 9-1 romp. In the conference opener the Cats were edged 11-10 by the Fayetteville Bulldogs in a 33-hit slugfest. Downed 9-4 by Goldsboro in the next tilt, the local nine copped its first conference victory over the Raleigh Caps 2-1. After dropping the next game to Rocky Mount 9-2, the Wilmington club went on to defeat Durham 12-4. The locals then chalked up another win by burying Wilson 17-2. The Cats were stopped 7-4 in their second engagement with Fayetteville, but tamed Goldsboro 3-2 on the Quakes' home ground. New Hanover followed with a 15-3 outburst over Raleigh. After edging Rocky Mount 3-2, the Wildcats defeated Durham 14-2. However, Wilson stopped the locals 6-1 in the closing game.

The Girls' Athletic Association was formed to promote interesting athletic activities, to develop character and sportsmanship, and to promote the apportionments of adequate time for a girl's physical education program. Its members, who do not have to be in gym classes, pay yearly dues and may stay after school for organized club activities. Legislative power for the local club is vested in the Athletic Council. Officers elected this year are: Louise Flynn, president; Jo Ann Farr, vice-president; Marsha Grass, secretary; Jean Farr, treasurer; Pat Taylor, social chairman; and Patty Musselwhite, sports co-ordinator.

Headquarters

Heading the corps of cadets this year is the new professor of Military Science, Captain Donald C. Green. Under him and the three NCO instructors, this year's Battalion has become a better and more smoothly operating unit. From helping a first year cadet disassemble his M-1 rifle to helping a second year cadet read a map is all in a day's work for these four men. Drawing from their experience and service, they teach the different phases of Army training which make up the basic fundamentals of ROTC.

Band Company

the acting adjutant, brought guffaws from the staff. Once Hedman marched on past his company when the officers returned to their posts. Rouse lost the staff of his baton. Such laughable occurrences add interest to ROTC life.

Third Year Cadets: B. Dawson, G. Hansley, J. Rouse, J. Smith, G. Staton, R. Williams. Second Year Cadets: D. Allen, J. Allen, D. Bellamy, E. Bruton, B. Bryant, G. Dail, W. Futrelle, V. Gore, A. Starling, D. Tadlock, R. Thompson, E. Tibbs, W. West.

Cadet Officers

After two years of learning the ways of the military, last year's NCO's are the cadet officers of 1964, but the process of learning continues. An officer begins to use such terms as 81, 106, T O & E, and PDG. He is taught to outshoot the enemy, plays hide and seek with an imaginary foe, and shoots an azimuth from hill 356 to hill 407 and follows this direction line. He learns to win a war, not by himself but with the help of the rest of the Army.

The exciting feeling at commissioning, passing in review at ROTC night, and dancing with that special girl at the ROTC Ball—all compose the life of a cadet officer.

Battalion Staff: M. F. Yarborough, Bn. Cmdr., S. Moody, Sponsor, Second Rank: J. H. Canady, H. J. Batuyios. Third Rank: F. J. Wooten, T. S. Tinney, H. M. Sikes.

General Willis takes the review at the Cape Fear Sword presentation.

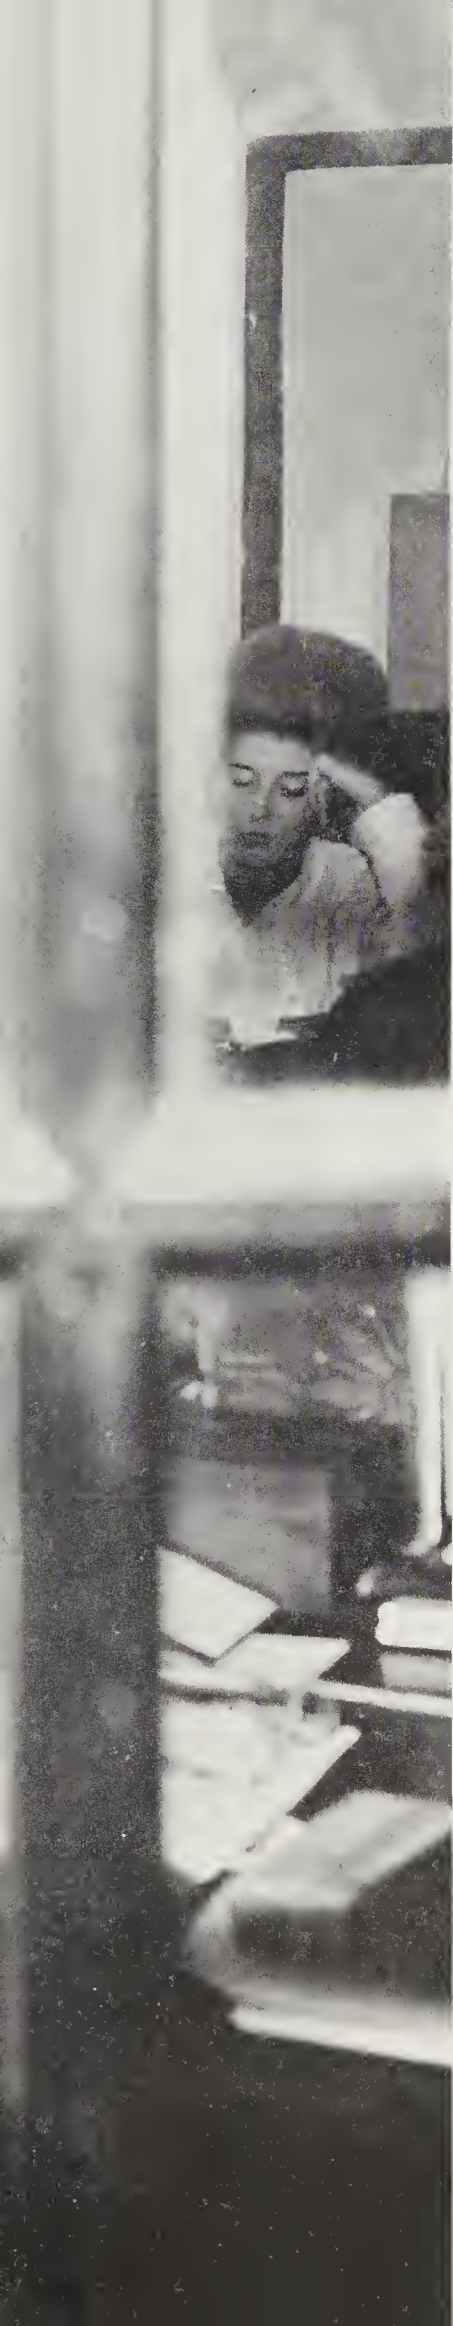

*And when he fell in whirlwind, he went down
As when a lordly cedar, green with boughs,
Goes down with a great shout upon the hills,
And leaves a lonesome place against the sky.*

Classes

The class begins. The pensive sophomore sits and waits—seeking security in this complex world he has entered. The junior laughs and participates—realizing the fulfillment of each day, the most memorable year. The senior studies and reflects, acknowledging his achievements, understanding his failures. The bell rings—the end of school, the beginning of life.

Sophomore President Bobby Wilson, Vice-president John Jordan, and Secretary Maxine Warshauer accept the responsibilities of class leadership.

That long awaited day finally arrives. Sophomores, shy and uncertain, anxiously enter senior high. Filled with excitement and curiosity, they look forward to many new experiences.

Within a few weeks they are secure in this new position and confidently elect their class officers, senators, and representatives to the Student Congress. Readily they respond to the responsibilities of their class by presenting the Twirp Dance, by displaying school spirit through participation in clubs, attendance at plays and other social functions, and hearty support of the ball teams.

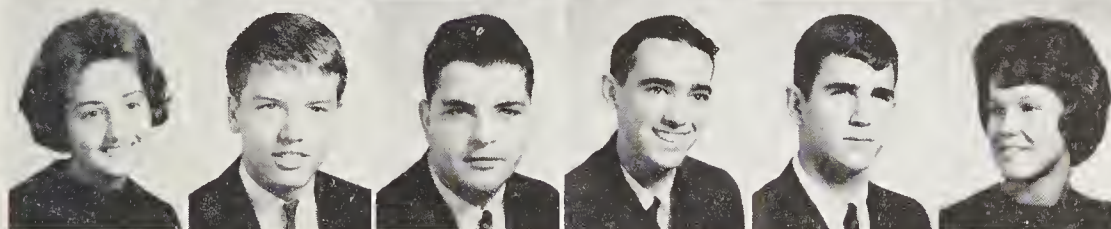

Time is filled with work, play, and study. It passes too quickly. Midterm exams creep upon the unsuspecting sophomores, who find exams in reality not as difficult as they had imagined.

The year ends. No longer are they unsure, impulsive sophomores. Enriched by many achievements and experiences, they stand bright and alert, ready to meet the challenges of the years to come.

"ROTC?" Johnny Askew, sophomore, has gotten his classes mixed up again!

Bobby Bohannon shows a curious group the Industrial Building on Sophomore Day.

Sophomore senators are Jeanne Johnson, Lee Clark, Bill Baugh, Stanley Yarborough, Jay Horton, and Mary Grubbs.

Lesley Allen treats Stanley Yarborough at the Twirp Dance.

"Too bad we can't go to that one." Ann Conner and Jimmy Dickie look longingly to the time when they can attend the Junior-Senior.

President Bobby Bohannon, Vice-president Nancy Lou Nicks, and Secretary Elane Beal work together for the benefit of the Junior Class.

JUNIOR CLASS

Proud of the title junior, last year's sophomores are overflowing with enthusiasm and energy. Working on the School Spirit Committee, cheering their team at the football and basketball games, forming a snake dance in the Homecoming Parade—nothing seems to exhaust their pep! And their knowledge is revealed when juniors receive high ratings on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Tests. Following the midterm exams, juniors choose the color and style of class rings for 1965. Juniors are the most club-conscious classmen; many become officers or important members. Throughout the year the National Thespian Society, Quill and Scroll Club, and National Honor Society accept new members from the junior class. The Junior-Senior Prom is a big moment in the life of every junior; it is the hallmark of the upperclassman. Creating good sportsmanship, presenting himself as a symbol of the school—this is the life of the junior.

Junior class senators are Wright Holman, Frances Futrelle, Pete Spiliotis, Gaye Godwin, Richard Combs, and Linda Myers.

Wayne Johnson, Jocelyn Strange, Hank Scoggins, and Kathy Seitter seem to be proud of their new rings!

Doug Walker, Allen Perry, and Doug Pollard entertain their class with Old English ballads.

Mike Brown and David Douthwaite remember that Leila Godwin has just gotten her license.

Members of the School Spirit Committee—Robin Leloudis, Betty Broadfoot, Elane Beal, and Pete Spiliotis—combine work and play as they paint signs for the football games.

Senior Vice-president Judy Bradshaw, President Bob O'Quinn, and Secretary Jenny Rivenbark carry out the wishes of their classmates.

SENIOR CLASS

Seniors—culminating three full, unforgettable years with the realization of some goal. The idle phrase “What do you want to do when you graduate?” suddenly is not idle at all but becomes a challenging prospect of broadening horizons and new responsibilities.

Naturally, the senior's thoughts do not always dwell on such profound musing. Letting his mind wander, he recalls the ambitious sophomore who aspires to be the first of his class to ascend the senior steps (with the ensuing free-for-all), the slightly unorthodox pulley system in the physics lab, the piquant aroma of English Leather blending with Arpege at the Junior-Senior, the methodical search through dozens of college catalogues, the feeling of pride upon being the first to leave assembly, and the heartbreak, joy, and satisfaction he feels on graduation day.

Some will go on to college, others to the service, and others to jobs; but all will retain something very real and significant from their brief sojourn at NHHS: a valuable lesson in the art of productive and cooperative living.

State Ports — the lifeline of Wilmington. It is the organism that keeps our city alive. Many ships pass through, some unloading, some taking on goods — goods shipped and consumed by the people of North Carolina. A sale in one store, a loss in another — this trading symbolizes the never ending markets of supply and demand, the give and take of life.

The student wanders. Random thoughts of the year pass across his mind. Like his footprints in the sand, the days gone have left their mark. As he looks at his surroundings, his new awareness of life is brought into focus. He sees beauty in something he loves. He understands something almost inconceivable. Sights and experiences now have meaning. So much was learned in a year. Yet, facing reality, the student knows that this was only a beginning, that every year life will unfold a little more.
